From the President

Dear members,

I'm writing this just before Thanksgiving, and although you won't read it until much after the holidays, I must share how thankful I am for all of you. The Chihuahua Club of America means a great deal to me and I think it means the same to most of you. These past couple of years have been rough for all of us for many reasons. The amazing opportunity for us to have had, not just one, but two Nationals harkens a new beginning, I believe. It was such a joy to see old friends and meet new ones. The entry was incredible! I can't even tell you how many lovely dogs that I would have gladly taken home.

So many people worked so hard to make those two shows a huge success. I'd like to thank all of you who attended, supported, came to watch, and did all the wonderful parts that make an amazing weekend. Special thanks go to our two co-chairs who pulled both Nationals together. Although Connie Williams has never before been able to attend one of our Nationals, she has a lot of experience putting on local specialties and the Houston Toy Shows. I think she did a great job with Joao Machado and you would never know this was her first time to St Louis for the Nationals.

Now to the Committees - Belinda McCormick and her committee presented an amazing array of fund raising activities, including a huge regular raffle, a silent auction, and a special raffle. Wow! And the Juniors Ways and Means Chair, Donna Bledsoe and her helpers were incredible. They and the Junior Handlers were always working to help out. They helped Racheal Miller and her Hospitality Committee load the Welcome Bags and then loaded up the special bags for each Junior who was entered. That extra workroom was really bustling on Wednesday night. Lo Wolfson was busy prior to the show, getting the reservations in for the RV parking and getting everyone settled. I know I've left someone out, but if I did, I apologize. Thank you to everyone who attended, helped out and shared the weekend with us.

This year was so special to me because I felt that most of us there were so happy to be there. After missing the previous year, due to Covid. All your officers and Board members are doing their best to be available to you, if you had any questions or concerns.

Lynnie Bunten

Editor's Pen

What a great Nationals! It was a fantastic turn out and so good to see everyone. Everyone who worked together this year to bring you the CCA Nationals deserves a standing ovation! Please be sure to show your appreciation to these great members.

And getting right back on track after last year's cancellation, this fall edition is covering the back to back Nationals. Those who didn't get to make it to St Louis can get a play by play, see what fun they missed, and wanna come out and be with us next year.

May all your ribbons be blue or better!

Backyard Agility

Agility isn't something that has to be done with the goal of competing. Agility training can be done for fun, exercise, and simply bonding with your Chihuahua. You can start in your back yard or basement with common household items.

When I started agility training in my backyard my husband made me jumps out of PVC pipe. I began A-frame training with a small folding table which I was able to fold into a triangle and cover with a rug to make it non-slip. My Chihuahuas loved it and it helped them to master a full size A-frame one day. Something as simple as walking on a board is the precursor to doing a dog walk, but learning to walk the board can be your final goal too. A large piece of plywood with a board or small log under it can serve as your "teeter". Keep it really low and that gets them use to walking on something that tips as they walk across it. You can do as much or as little as you'd like with your Chihuahua. Whatever you do will be rewarding for you both.

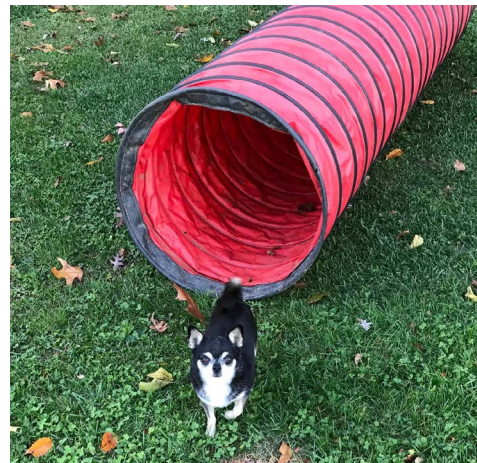

You may already have a children's play tunnel or a cat tunnel to send your Chihuahua through. You can also start with a cardboard box or plastic barrel. You can teach your dog to go around a cone, flowerpot, chair or whatever to lay the foundation for sending to jumps. A shower curtain rod and 2 small boxes makes a great practice jump.

Look around your house and use your imagination. Just remember to make sure whatever you use is safe and sturdy so your dog's experience is a positive one. Keep the jumps at 4"-8" depending on the size and ability of your pup.

by Joyce Gutshall

I have found that tunnels are one of my Chihuahuas favorite obstacles and professional grade TDAA size tunnels were one of my first major agility purchases. I leave them outside year round and they have lasted over fifteen years now. I consider them to be money well spent.

Classes are a great way to learn the sport of agility, however, you don't have to attend classes to do agility for fun in your back yard. There are many excellent books and videos which will help you to get started. One of my personal favorites is The Beginner's Guide to Dog Agility by Laura Leach.

2021 National Specialty Shows

St. Louis, Missouri • October 14th-17th

2021 CCA Nationals Judges' Commentary

Hello everyone –

I was asked to make a few comments about the entry. First, I want to say thank you for voting for me to judge the specialty. Your confidence in me, as a breeder judge, means a lot. Well, to start -- I am happy so many people came to the show. With all that going around us, the entries were sizeable. It is easy to see that everyone has been locked down for a while.

I was impressed with your dogs. I was very impressed with the front & rears on the dogs. Everyone has brought their breeding program a long way. I thought the dogs were very well table trained. I appreciate that fact. We all know how they can be with strangers. Smooth Coat topline were great. It was easy to see that the smooth coats just continue to improve in quality from year to year. Nothing to hide on those bodies. Just keep on doing what you do best in your breeding program as they continue to get better and better. Good fronts and rears, level topline, great side gait movement.

Now, the long coats were also good, but remember that just because they have more hair, you still need to strive for the correct body under all that hair. I felt that the fronts and rears on the long coats needed to have some attention. Just because they are called long coats, doesn't mean long in body. The standard calls for the body to be off-square; hence, slightly longer when measured from point of shoulder to point of buttocks, not a leg envelope. I continue to be impressed with the levelness of the topline, and the fronts and rears.

Thank you for showing and I hope you had a good time in the ring with me. I know I had a great time. See you at the shows.

Thank you to the Chihuahua Club of America members and show committee for making this a most enjoyable judging assignment. I especially commend Joao Machado, the show chairman, for his warm and welcoming demeanor. The ring steward was organized and efficient and the exhibitors were all pleasant.

In judging I was particularly looking for a well domed head in profile as well as between the ear set as opposed to flatness. I also wanted large, well-set ears and large eyes. I didn't want an over done head with a too short muzzle that is more of a caricature than what a Chihuahua should actually look like. I like a well-balanced, compact dog. Dogs that have short legs and long backs do not fit the standard. Even allowing for a bitch to be slightly longer the overall look should be compact.

The BOB bitch fit all the above criteria. In addition she has lovely legs, movement, and topline. Her weight, condition, and showmanship couldn't have been better. She edged out the BOS dog by a slight difference in eye size. BOS isn't a flashy dog but very well put together. Perfect balance and topline. Great legs and clean movement. Beautiful head.

The BOV longcoat, a veteran, is a doll. Stunning head. Beautiful compact balance for a bitch. Great legs and topline. She showed her heart out. BOS dog is very sound, lovely head, topline, and movement. The bitch defeated him because of a fraction better balance.

With so many lovely dogs often decisions were made based on the most minute differences. The longcoat veteran dog class was especially difficult to judge since they were all so wonderful. I could have awarded them all first place. The breeders and owners of these dogs can be very, very proud. As overall observation I found great depth of quality in LC bitches. There were a number of them that I would gladly have taken home. I saw only a rare undershot, wry, or overshot bite. What was surprising was the number of open bites, where the dog couldn't completely close it's mouth. I'm not sure if people are looking at that bite as a level bite or what, but even with level the mouth should still be able to close completely. I hope breeders will be careful with this in the future.

Again thank you for the honor of judging the specialty. It is an experience I will always treasure.

Linda George

Pyometra is a hormonally mediated infection of the uterus, reported primarily in older bitches >5 yr old and occurs about 4-6 weeks after estrus. Pyometra is predisposed by cystic endometrial hyperplasia of the uterine lining with secondary bacterial infection and can lead to life threatening consequences. Prevention of this disease is one of the main reasons for routinely spaying female dogs.

CAUSES

With each heat cycle, the uterine lining engorges in preparation for pregnancy. Eventually, some tissue becomes excessive or persistent due to the hormone progesterone promoting endometrial growth and glandular secretion. This creates a condition called cystic endometrial hyperplasia. The accumulation of uterine secretions ultimately develop and provide an excellent environment for bacterial growth which can become excessive, leading the entire uterus to fill with pus. Hormonal effects on the uterine tissue accumulate with each heat cycle, which means pyometra is much more common in older females because they have experienced many hormonal cycles. Simply put, older females have increased thickness to their uterine lining predisposing them to bacterial accumulation.

Progesterone additionally inhibits the immune response to bacterial infection. Bacteria from the normal vaginal flora or subclinical urinary tract infections are the most likely sources of uterine contamination. E. coli is the most common bacteria cultured in cases of pyometra, although Staphylococcus, Streptococcus, Pseudomonas, Proteus spp, and other bacteria also have been recovered. Bacteria and their associated toxins accumulate and leak across the uterine walls and into the bloodstream, causing life-threatening effects and sepsis.

Understanding Pyometra

The uterus can rupture, releasing large amounts of pus and dead tissue into the abdomen. Without treatment, death is inevitable. Prevention of this disease is one of the main reasons for routinely spaying female dogs and administration of exogenous estrogens to prevent pregnancy (ie, "mismatch shots") greatly increases the risk of developing pyometra and should be discouraged.

SIGNS

Classically, the patient is an older intact female and has finished a heat cycle in the previous 30-60 days. A poor appetite, vomiting, excessive drinking and urination, fever, lethargy, and diarrhea are often reported. Abdominal distension can also be noted, as can shock and eventually death. In the more common "open pyometra," the cervix is open and the purulent vaginal discharge with an odor can be apparent. There is also a form called a closed pyometra where the cervix is closed and no discharge can be seen. A closed pyometra often results in a dog with more signs since there is increased bacteria/toxin in the dog. Progesterone additionally inhibits the immune response to bacterial infection. Bacteria from the normal vaginal flora or subclinical urinary tract infections are the most likely sources of uterine contamination. E. coli is the most common bacteria cultured in cases of pyometra, although Staphylococcus, Streptococcus, Pseudomonas, Proteus spp, and other bacteria also have been recovered.

DIAGNOSIS

Appreciating pustular creamy discharge from the vulva is a pretty clear indicator of pyometra if starting shortly after a heat cycle. A vaginal cytology often helps determine the nature of the vulvar discharge. Bacterial culture and sensitivity testing further specifies the discharge and aids in proper treatment.

Of special note- timing is important! Metritis is a uterine infection and is different than pyometra. Metritis is after delivery of puppies and carries a potentially different, more favorable prognosis. Abdominal radiography, and ultrasonography are commonly obtained. Dilated uterine loops create the greatest concern on imaging. Bloodwork and a urine sample assess immune response, and organ function help exclude other differentials with similar clinical signs.

TREATMENT

The preferred treatment is a ovariohysterectomy (spay) because the infection is expected to return. The surgery can be challenging, especially if the patient is toxic and removal of the uterus is performed after stabilization and medical therapy including antibiotics, anti-inflammatories and IV fluids. All of the ovaries and uterus need to be removed to prevent recurrence. Any portion of the reproductive tract remaining has the potential to create a stump pyometra and continued problems. Medical management without surgery could be considered if preserving a valuable bitch's reproductive potential. This includes IV fluids, broad-spectrum antibiotics, anti-inflammatories, prostaglandin injections, and sometimes includes uterine lavage. The prostaglandin injections are given to cause uterine contractions and expel the pus.

Often a week of hospitalization is required, and cramping and discomfort is to be expected. Occasionally an additional round of treatment is needed. Uterine rupture can be a risk and life threatening with prostaglandin injections if the cervix is closed. Prostaglandins are also not currently approved for use in dogs and cats in the USA, and have a narrow safety margin.

The female must be bred on the next heat cycle. If she is not bred or does not conceive puppies on the next heat cycle, the recurrence rate of pyometra may be as high as 77%. After a pyometra, the uterus is often damaged and still may not allow carrying a normal litter. Pregnancy rates are only 50-65% after a pyometra. Unless the dog has great value to a breeding program, it may not be worth it to attempt prostaglandin treatment. Spaying is still recommended when the bitch will no longer be bred to prevent pyometra recurrence.

PREVENTION

General hygiene is ideal for many reasons. Keeping clean kennels and housing, as well as maintenance sanitary trims for dogs not being shown all decrease bacterial load and infection risk. Monitor closely any females that are prone to urinary tract infections and for many reasons, keep a log about when your females come into season. This better helps you and your veterinarian with timing risks. Ultimately, spaying represents complete prevention for this condition. The importance of spaying cannot be over-emphasized. Often an owner plans to breed a pet or is undecided, time passes, and then they fear she is too old to be spayed. The female dog or cat can benefit from spaying at any age. Any perceived risks of surgery are very much out-weighted by the risk of pyometra.

IN SUMMARY

It is strongly recommended to consider spaying females not being used for breeding or those retired from a breeding to prevent life threatening pyometra risks. Medical treatment can be considered for valuable females in a breeding program. Medical treatment is not without risk, often results in decreased fertility, and a very high likelihood that pyometra will return in the future, still necessitating a spay.
